Panguaneta plywood Discovering a high-performance material

Panguaneta transforms a valuable raw material, poplar, into plywood and multi-layer products with innovative mechanical features. In over half a century of specific know-how, Panguaneta has developed an unrivalled experience: from research to experiments on clones, from cultivation to traceability and from governing factory flows to implementing new technologies.

Panguaneta multi-layer products are an innovative choice, beautiful and functional both in architecture and structural use. Panguaneta exclusive production methods mean not only the full environmental sustainability of poplar wood but, above all, the quality and consistency of standards guaranteed by our exclusive production methods, capable of governing and tracking the entire supply chain. Ensuring ideal physical and mechanical features in various engineering and architecture applications, Panguaneta products lead to hi-tech positioning for raw materials totally unthinkable only a few years ago. The flexible use of poplar plywood - which can be used in conjunction with other wood veneers - means flooring and interior furnishing strips can more easily take shape, as well as structural forms or particular, semi-finished products for building use.

A strategic product at your service

Panguaneta is a heritage of excellence at the service of our customers, the very heart of our business strategy. Every day Panguaneta strives in a dynamic and responsible manner to significantly improve the performance of your products. Panguaneta plywood and multi-layer products cost-wise are more profitable, using the updated factory's sophisticated production modules and customer service, ready to seize opportunities, suggest solutions and anticipate needs. In terms of feasibility and cost optimisation this benefits any industrial production eager to compete in global markets.
